McNair Scholars Program

WELCOME!

We are happy to welcome you to the Ronald E. McNair Post-Baccalaureate Achievement Program at Delaware State University!

Recognizing that diversity of scholars is integral to educational excellence, the Delaware State University Ronald E. McNair Post-Baccalaureate Achievement Program seeks to produce scholars and researchers who will more accurately reflect the growing diversity in intellectual perspectives, life experiences and cultures in academia.

Named after Dr. Ronald E. McNair, one of the first African-American astronauts, the program is committed to increasing the number of students in doctoral degree programs who come from low-income and first generation backgrounds, or who are members of traditionally underrepresented groups in academia, specifically African-American, Hispanic/Latino, and American Indian/Alaska Natives.

The McNair Scholars Program benefits from alliances with Departments and the Graduate School at DSU. The McNair Scholars Program is funded by a federal TRIO grant from the U.S. Department of Education.
