Please click here to donate online. <sup>[1]</sup>

As one of the nation's premier universities, Delaware State University is a great investment opportunity for corporations and foundations.

Corporations and foundations are driving forces behind much of the research and many of the programs that take place on campuses today, and this is especially true at Delaware State University. The Office of Development staff members identify opportunities ? programs, research activities, capital projects, endowed chairs and professorships, fellowship needs and other elements of University life ? that parallel corporation and foundation giving opportunities.

From recruiting and mentoring students, to funding world-changing research and education programs, corporations investing in Delaware State University have many opportunities to make a difference in the world we live in.
